The judges were particularly impressed by the care and love for dogs at Country Style Dachshunds that gives them each an exceptional start in life. From the moment they can walk, the puppies freely roam around natural valleys and woodlands, which helps to build up their confidence and as well as exercise, the breeding company are committed to helping dogs integrate with other people and animals as much as possible. Justin and Sue pride themselves on their puppy socialisation programme, which makes sure that puppies are never handed over until they're absolutely certain they are confident, happy and going to the right home.
